

impulze

Pharma Market Research Analyst

impulze is a Zurich-based boutique consulting company working in the commercial and marketing business of the Pharma Industry.

As a Market Research Analyst you will support our team in national and international market research projects. You will work with a variety of our Big Pharma clients across different therapeutic areas, mainly in Oncology and other growing market segments.

Your background in life sciences (preferably MSc), data affinity, and genuine interest in the pharmaceutical industry will allow you to put market data into real world context.

At impulze, you will be able to apply your IT- and project management skills in developing web-based survey projects from setup to reporting in direct contact with clients from the pharmaceutical industry, and develop leadership skills when managing our student interns. We require proficient Excel & PowerPoint as a must, coding skills are welcome, basic knowledge of German and French, fluency in English, and high-level communication skills.

The opening can be filled as a graduate entry position or with first professional experience, starting in December 2019 or January 2020.

To apply please e-mail your CV and a short motivation letter to recruiting@impulze.ch